

Bachelor (Undergraduate programme) study is designed as electrical engineering Study focusing on communication, power supply and safety networks and systems in transport, communication and other branches of industry. It also concentrates on electrical drives and traction in railway, road, tramway, trolleybus transport and in underground. The graduates obtain the bachelor degree (Bc.) and may apply for a job in industrial and transport corporations in operation, maintenance, management or inspection of electrical engineering equipment as engineers with technical university education or they can continue in master studies at any university providing study of the same or similar branches.